www.vodafone-stiftung.de - Education, Integration and Social Mobility

The Vodafone Foundation is one of the large company-related foundations in Germany and a member of a global family of foundations. As an independent, non-profit institution and socio-political think tank, it supports and initiates programmes with the goal of providing impetus for social progress, of fostering the development of an active civil society and of assuming socio-political responsibility. Focusing on the fields of education, integration, and social mobility, the foundation's mission is to recognise challenges and chances, to give support and eventually to make a difference. The Foundation is dedicated to these goals, with long-term programme funding, awards, competitions and scholarships, as well as a think tank. In this way, the foundation aims to bring about changes to the regulatory and institutional framework with a view to creating prospects for upward social mobility among children and young people from a socially disadvantaged background.
