Opinions are my own

- Communications expert as Deputy Spokeswoman of CSU, based in Munich. Selected as #30u30 from PR Report. Network in international media and politics.
- TEDx Speaker (TEDxTalk, Sept 2021, Innsbruck) and expert on topics like "future of education" and "FutureSkills", Moderator of tech & innovation events.
- Special interests in AI, social entrepreneurship, digital transformation and the future of work.
- Invited research student at the University of Cambridge's Institute for Manufacturing with focus on AI and future of work: what are uniquely human abilities in the digital age?
- Graduated with a Master of Science in International Business & Politics from Copenhagen Business School. Interdisciplinary politics, economics and management allrounder with a Bachelor of Arts from Zeppelin University in Germany.
- With a family business background experienced as (Junior) Consultant in HR & Business Development.
- Team builder & communicator with a passion for project management, organizing and hosting events, leading and managing (volunteering) teams for more than eight years
- As a swim coach, I have been passing on my passion for competitive swimming to the talents of tomorrow. For the last seven years, I have been coaching young talents, teaching them important values, such as discipline, ambition and most importantly team spirit.
- My main questions: What are future trends and what are the challenges to tackle them?

TEDxSpeaker - Future Skills

September 2021 - September 2021 (1 Monat)

Innsbruck, Tyrol, Austria

The COVID-19 crisis changed our social communication, work behavior and learning processes. This requires an adaptation of the competencies that the educational institutions are especially responsible for communicating. Not only digital skills, but also so-called human skills such as collaboration, creativity, empathy or emotional intelligence, are becoming tremendously important. What skills do we need in the future for an increasingly dynamic and unpredictable world of work and life? How does the transformation from focusing on knowledge formation to the development of future skills succeed? How do teaching and learning places have to change and what role do educational institutions, companies and civil society play in this? Transformations in society, culture, economy, politics, employment and knowledge require us to fundamentally rethink how we perceive, organise and reinvent education. It is time to think more digital and to relearn how to be human. Because being human is the next big thing!

Future Leaders Global

Participant 2017/18

September 2017 - Juni 2018 (10 Monate)

Copenhagen Area, Capital Region, Denmark

The Future Leaders program focuses on the development of leaders with a strong focus on ethical and empathic leadership; leaders who walk the walk; leaders who take social responsibility; leaders who care about the environment; leaders who understand how to use the market economy in a way that allows them to change it to the better.

The Future Leaders program is based on the Tipping Point Methodology (TMP) - a method for personal, organizational, and societal breakthroughs.

Future Entrepreneurs of Denmark

FED Batch Fall 2017

Oktober 2017 - Dezember 2017 (3 Monate)

Copenhagen Area, Capital Region, Denmark

Future Entrepreneurs of Denmark (FED) is a diverse talent network that was established to bridge the gap between companies, the academic world, and entrepreneurs. The network is a joint initiative of student organizations from numerous top universities in Denmark with focus on entrepreneurship.

In collaboration with top-tier partners such as McKinsey& Co., Google, DesignIt, Business & Danmark, Vertical Strategy and many more, each semester the brightest students and recent graduates with diverse educational backgrounds are admitted to FED program.

FED develops entrepreneurial mind-set and competencies through seven customized workshops on topics such as Ideation, Validation, Sales & Marketing, Funding & Legal and result in start-up competition followed by a grand pitch final.
